Closing Exercises at Georgetown College and St. Cecilia's Academy.

Who Received Medals and Premiums at Each Institution,

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE. The sixty-ninth annual commencement of Georgetown college took place yesterday morning in the large hall of the college building, and the attendance was very great. Warm commendations were bestowed by the visitors upon the beautiful grounds which surround the college and also the massive character of the buildings. The exercises were particularly interesting, and were listened to with deep attention, all the orations being remarkable for elegance of diction and graceful and effective delivery. Father Becker presided. Upon his left sat Judge Brooke, of Maryland, and on his right Rev. Dr. Fulton, chief of provincials of the Seciety of Jesus. Upon the platform were seated the graduates and former graduates, most of the principal Catholic clergy of this district and many well known citizens.

The programme was as follows:

A PISCATORIAL PARADISE.

The Potomac and Its Tributaries Alive with Game and Delicious Fish-An Enthusisast's Sentiments.

In a well written article on fly-fishing a correspondent speaks of the benefit such sport would be to the average Washingtonian. Be sides giving the needed exercise in the open air, there is a pleasurable excitement about it: which acts as a healthy perve stimulus. The and fly-fisher is something of a diletante in sport. The tools of his trade are dainty and elegant. The lissome bamboo rod, the enameled woven silk line, the smoothly running reel, and the delicate leader, with its pendent flies, made an imitation of almost every insects; thuse are the graceful accessories of fly-fishing. Then, unlike bass fishing, when all that is necessary is to sit on a rock and watch a bob floating on the surface, fly-fishing requires activity which gives health and strength. In the selection of location the correspondent says:

If possible let the feathered lure be the first and only moving thing to attract the fish.
Keep yourself from view. When that is impossible, all your hope lies in being able to make long casts, permitting the fly to remain for an instant and slightly sinking on the water before recovering it. The bass, though gamey enough when hooked, seems to prefer eizing the hook when under or at least upon the water, unlike the brook trout, which often takes the fly above the water, throwing himself entirely out of his native element in pursuit of it. The striped bass, or rock fish, affords the best sport to be found in our waters, almost rivaling the salmon for dash and pluck. Were it not for the hundreds of villainous nets and other murderous contrivances that line our noble river from bay to mountain, no finer sport could be enjoye than the capture of these striped ba with the fly. It is within the recollection of many residents of this city that striped bass were once taken with the fly in the vicinity of Little falls, of twenty or thirty pounds weight. The exploit of Mr. Crampte the British embassador, is remembered by many. He, with a two handed red, and an English salmon fly, captured a twenty-flve pounder there. The contiguity of such sport to a city like ours is worthy the same liberal culture and protection as is exhibited in the ordering and fostering of our beautiful parks, and for similar reasons, Norris, the author of the "American Angler," a genial writer and skillful angler, possessed of Issak Walton's chivalrous spirit and lacking only his quaint-ness, speaks of the falls on the Potomac "near Georgotown" as one of the favorite haunts of Georgotown as one of the layofite naunts of this noble fish. Since the time he wrote, the fishing has much deteriorated, owing to the constant netting. The black bass are yet to be found and taken there by the skillful fly fisher, both gamy and excellent on the table, and are eaten, I verily believe, with an added rest and certainly a clear conscious when zest, and certainly a clear conscious, when with the fly. The white perch, though inferior in size to either the striped or black bass, afford good sport, and will rise freely to a light-colored or white fly, toward sundown. They are found at almost all points where fishing is possible in the upper Potomac. I have taken them them with the coachman fly, by moonlight, often two and sometimes three at a cast. In ordinary seasons fly fishing may be practiced in this latitude from June to November, the chances for sport being best in the early morning and a few hours before sunset. The best flies are, generally speaking, the Huckles—brown, black, and red—and a few winged flies, notably the Ferguson. They should be tied on a good-sized hook—say No. 1 or 2, commend to the fraternity of anglers the pr pricty and benefit of learning to tie them, n pecially as an economy, but as an accomplish ment of real service and adding to the pleasure of success. It is by no means difficult, and, once acquired, affords pleasurt pasting for once acquired, affords pleasant pastime for long winter evenings, when there's nothing left of fine summer's sport but memories of its failures and suncesses. Darker colored flies will take when the water is pune and clear and the day unclouded, the lighter colored one's being best adapted to slightly turbid water and cloudy sky. Fish, if possible, facing the sun, or at least so that your shadow shall not be thrown across the water. Above all things, keep as much out of sight Above all things, keep as much out of sight of the fish as possible and avoid treading heavily—as although fish have no special heavily—as although fish have no special sense of hearing—they are peculiarly sensitive to a jarring or disturbance of either the water or the shore connecting therewith. "Patience is the badge of all our tribe." Therefore let no mishap, however provoking, induce hasty act or word. Quietly and cooly repair damages, and with steady nerve cast again for the escaped beauty or try another place. You will not always fail, nor need you count that day lost that finds you at sunset count that day lost that finds you at sunset with an empty creel if you have fairly tolled. For the possession of the victims is not year sole reward, nor even a reflection upon your sole reward, nor even a reflection upon your skill, there being days when the water dwell-ers are at home to no callers whatever and tempted by no lure.

Closing Exercises at Several Schools and Colleges Yesterday-Addresses Delivered and Degrees Conferred. Special Dispatch

Annapolis, June 28.—The commencement at St. John's college to-day celebrates the sixteenth anniversary of its reorganization since the late war. The exercises were held in McDowell hall because of its capacity to accommodate a large audience. In addition to the five graduates and the faculty of the college, there were scated on the platform the board of governors and visitors and several of the alumni of the institution. President Leavitt occupied a sest in the center of the stage and introduced the graduates. stage and introduced the graduates. Incorder of exercises was as follows:
Scripture and prayer, music; salutatory oration, D. R. Bandall, Annapolis; "Beligious Toleration in Colonial Maryland," James Daniel Murray, Annapolis; address, "That Government Is Best Which Is Bost Suited to Movernment is Best Which is Bost Suited to the Genius of the People," Edward H. Sin-cell, Oakland, Garrett county; "Communism," Norman V. S. Farquhar, Annapolis, Md.; val-edictory, Beale E. Padgett, Port Tobacco, Charles county. Each address was inter-spersed with music by the naval academy

There were five graduates, but only four received the degree of bachelor of arts, namely, Messrs. Randall, Padgett, Farquhar, and Mur-ray. Mr. Sincell, who did not complete the whole course, received the degree of distinguished proficient in several studies.

The president, Dr. Leavitt, made an excellent address to the graduates.

WORCESTER, MASS., June 28.—Gov. Butler and staff were present at the graduating ex-ercises at Holy Cross college to-day, and the governor presented the diplomas, advising the graduatos to choose some profession and stick to it, and make "stick" their motto, the graduates to choose some profession and stick to it, and make "stick" their motto, for by so doing a man of ordinary brains could turn a bad thing into a good one. His first impulse at college was to study the natural sciences, but fite afterward decided that he should be a lawyer, although he always thought he would make a better doctor. Rev. Robert W. Brady, S. J., of New York, has been appointed president of the college, and President Boone will be transferred to some other place. some other place.

McComas, Mr. James W. Bosler, Rev. Dr. O. H. Tiffany, Rev. R. W. Humphriss. The Rev. Jesse B. Young announced that the trustees had just raised $20,000 for the crocking of a new scientific houlding. After a trustees had just raised $20,000 for the erection of a new scientific building. After a paper by C. W. Carrigan, esq., of Philadelphia, on the late Dr. McClintock, Rev. Mr. Young suggested that that great and noble divine and educator ought to be commemorated by the formation of an alumni "McClintock Professorship" in the college. The suggestion met with instant response, and in a little while splendid gifts from Gen. Fisk, Gen. Patton, Mr. James W. Bosler, Mr. C. J. Baker, the Tiffany brother divines, Dr. Hugh Pitcairn, Dr. J. W. Hendrix, W. F. Slater, esq., and others were an accreted which accounted at the close of the nounced, which amounted at the close of the exercises to nearly $22,000, making in all about $42,000 as the financial results of the day.

A letter from ex-Secretary Blaine to Mr. James W. Bosler was read, expressing his regrets at not being able to attend the banquet, and recalling the fact that his ancestor of revolutionary fame, Gen. Ephriam Blaine, had been one of the earliest friends of the college.

The Hon. Jesse H. Diverty, of New Jersey, the Hon. Jacob Tome, of Port Deposit, Md., and James Long, of Philadelphia, were elected trustees. The following honorary degrees were conferred: Maseer of Arts: Dr. Henry C. Longnecker,

Syren, after killing his sisterin-law, attempted to kill himself and in-flicted injuries which kept him in the hospi-tal for several weeks.

A Texas Tragedy.

GALVESTON, TEX., June 28.-A special dispatch from Lampasas to the News says a terrible tragedy, of which the cause is shrouded in mystery, occurred yesterday. While C. H. Ross, a successful merchant, was at table with his family a pistol shot was heard from his wife's chamber, she being in a delicate con-dition and confined to her bed. The startled family found her in her last agonies, the ball having entered under the left breast. The husband made an unintelligible remark, and rushing out returned with some of the neigh-bors, one of whom, raising Mrs. Ross's head, asked how it happened. The husband reasked how it happened. The husband re-plied by catching up the pistol, placing it at his own temple and firing. He fell dead beside his wife

A SUSPECTED MURDER.

An Antopsy, However, Reveals the Fact that Death was Caused by Heart Disense.

Mrs. Bartlett Armstrong, a well-known colred woman residing at First and P streets northwest, died suddenly on Wednesday night, and as she had been in excellent health a short time before, her death was regarded with suspicion. Mrs. Armstrong, it was afterward leatned, had died from heart disease while laboring under excitement. She was sitting in her home when Philip Lancaster, who has been living with her daughter, Mary Jane, came into the house in search of the latter. He was intoxicated, and when the daughter came in he began abusing her. He the started Mary Jane, his and when the daughter came in he began abusing her. He threatened Mary Jane, his mistress, and pulled a pistol from his pocket. Mrs. Armstrong interfered, and when the quarrel had subsided she was observed to throw up her hands and fall to the floor. She died shortly after and Lancaster was arrosted, having, it is thought, been in some way connected with her death. Coroner Patterson nected with her death. Coroner Patterson and Dr. Hartigan held a post mortem, and gave a certificate of death from natural causes. Lawrence is held at the second precinct sta tion for carrying a concealed weapon.

The Lawn Party at Mr. Barbour's.

The residence of Mr. A. L. Barbour, at Le-Droit park, was crowded last night by ladies and gentlemen connected with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The house and grounds were brilliantly illuminated. The Marine band, who gave their minated. The startne band, who gave their services without pay, rendered excellent selections. The refreshments, which were noticeable for quality and quantity, were in charge of Misses Pook, Gilfillan, Douglas,
